Tempo di Vale

By the camp fi-re bright I am think-ing to-night Of my mother at home all a - lone, ——— And I Now a fight has be-gun; so I shoulder my gun, Midst the shrieking of shot all a - round, ——— Ov-er-think of the day that I start-ed a - way, For the bat-tle field far from home. ——— And in head burst a shell, first I reeled, then I fell, On my knees then sank to the ground. ——— As I fan-cy I see her sweet face once a - gain, When I kissed her good-bye, she sang this sweet re - frain.

lay on the field with a wound in my head, I can see mother, dear, by my side as she said.
